Newbie crew! I'm a young, Australian software engineer who's learning Python, so we really get to play in the ocean of functional programming and all of that good stuff. I'm working in the FOSS community because I love open source and I'm having fun on the job. Get the resources you need to create a professional website in minutes. The top HTML editors for Mac that allow you to create clean, professional-looking websites. WinWord is an application for working on Microsoft Word document. It is designed as a fully featured program that makes editing for a larger audience seamless and easy. Besides making the editing functionality accessible for the general public, the app also helps users work on more complex documents without having to have a strong technical background. While working on a document in Microsoft Word, it is usually necessary to switch back and forth from editing to reading, comparing, marking up and other activities. One of the best tools to take care of this is the new Read mode. In this mode, the app changes the appearance of your Word document with a modern and clean theme. The color palettes, fonts and animations in the editor are consistent with the theme, which allows users to focus on editing. Some of the key features of WinWord include: Compatibility for Mac and Windows Read Mode and highlighting. You can quickly switch between the Read Mode and any other mode. All the formatting, sections and styles are preserved. Full

I stop a button press from resizing the div it is in? So I have a webpage and I'm using CSS and JavaScript to create a div, but when I add a button to it, it adds a horizontal scrollbar and also the bottom of the div goes past the bottom of the webpage. I'm calling `setBounds(left, top, width, height)` on the div and `setBounds(width, height)` on the button and they both work, but somehow they seem to combine into one big function. How do I stop this from happening? Here is the code, I removed all of the code that isn't relevant: `Game #startButton { height: 100%; width: auto; } #gameArea { height: 100%; width: auto; background-color: #262626; overflow: auto; } #labelArea { height: 100%; b7e8fdf5c8`
