News 5 tips to help you avoid getting scammed when buying a car. Auto loans can be complicated. And sometimes they can be expensive. But a good lender can be your best friend. As the 2018 tax season nears, more and more consumers are buying cars using credit. That means you are more likely to become a victim of identity theft when buying a car with a loan. The Consumer Financial Protection Bureau says online lenders see the highest volume of scamming activity during the tax season. That is typically about the first of April. And April is now just a couple of weeks away, here are five tips to help you avoid getting scammed when buying a car. 1. Talk with the seller face-to-face If you are buying a car from a dealer, you may want to consider having a face-to-face conversation to get a better idea of who they are and how they work. Shop online and you won't get the opportunity to meet with the seller. An online seller can't tell you the minute the buyer's credit score drops. If you have never worked with that lender before, a conversation is the best way to find out their procedures. Find out if they can give you a price for your trade-in. And if you don't plan on trading it in, find out if the seller offers a free loan. That way you will know how much money your trade-in is worth. Get the best rate If you have bad credit, it is easier to get a higher rate than a person with good credit. While you may be able to get a good rate from a dealer, doing a little sleuthing on the Internet will make finding a deal easier for you. Does the dealer have great deals on the car you want? Do a few simple searches on the Internet, like GoodCarBin, CreditKarma and Reasonable.com. Do you know how much you have to qualify for? They will give you an approximate amount you will need to qualify for. Get a certified pre-owned From dealers, you can usually get a certified pre-owned car. This is a car that has been put through extensive testing and inspection. When you start looking on the Internet, you won't find these. There is no regulator for this industry. You will have to do the research yourself. Trust your gut. If a car seems too good to be true, it probably is. Be wary of foreign dealers Who needs the hassle of buying a car
